GREAT ORME EXPLORATION SOCIETY

www.goes.org.uk

The Great Orme Exploration Society was founded in 1985 to study, investigate and promote the history of "Llandudno's Mountain" with a particular emphasis on the old mine workings.

The Journal of the Great Orme Exploration Society (GOES)

The GOES Journals contain a wealth of information about the Great Orme, and an Index has been provided to give access to the information. By and large, the index is a subject index, which is probably the most useful format. Once in a while though, a title entry is preferred where this appears to make sense!

GOES is by definition concerned with the exploration of the Great Orme, so the latter is therefore ignored as a subject entry. Most of the time anyway! Some short items or ephemeral items have been excluded from the index e.g. GOES Xmas lunches.

A small number of articles were difficult to index: these include imaginative articles where the writers displayed their creative side and a few articles describing work underground without giving clear indication of where the exploits were performed. In all cases, the indexer had to use common sense. Bear in mind here that one person's common sense is another person's confusion!

In a few Journals, the contents list refers to articles which do not actually appear in the Journal! Possibly in converting articles to PDF format something has gone astray. On occasion several articles have disappeared from the Journal.

It is hoped that the abbreviations used in the index are self-evident, but to avoid misunderstandings, please note the following: -

1992:3:12 indicates the GOES Journal for 1992, issue3, page 12.
